Theatre for Youth
 and Outreach Program

Let Your Imagination Take You Places

Twenty-two years of bringing arts and cultural experiences to youth! We extend heartfelt thanks to our dedicated educators and community for the continued support of the King Center Theatre for Youth Program. We strive to select programs that will entertain, educate and enrich through each live theatre experience. Study guides assist educators in making deeper connections between classroom learning and the theatre experience. With much excitement, we are looking forward to working with you as we embark on another season of live theatre. Let Your Imagination Take You Places!

Yours in the arts,

Karen

About Our Shows...

Performances are on the Main Stage and open to the public unless otherwise noted. The King Center reserves the right to photograph and/or video members of our audience while attending any of the Theatre for Youth Programs (to be used for promotional purposes only). Names of attendees are not used unless prior approval is given by the individual. All patrons, including infants and bus drivers, are required to have a ticket for admission to the theatre. Parental Guidance and Disclaimer: We are frequently asked, "Is this performance suitable for children?" What might be acceptable to some could be objectionable to others. The programs that we present for our youth through school time and family events are completely appropriate for children of all ages. We urge you to visit the artist web site prior to ordering and decide what is appropriate based on your own personal family values and standards.

INTERACTIVE WORKSHOP Tuesday, October 25

The War is Won....What's Next!

In conjunction with the main stage performance of The World Turned Upside Down: Music and Stories of the American Revolution, this interactive workshop is presented in cooperation with the League of Women Voters of the Space Coast. Through a series of hands on activities, the workshop will cover such topics as: the development of the colonies in America, their progression to independence from England, their growth into a strong United States, the making of the American flag, and an understanding of the power and responsibility of voting. Space is limited. Priority is given to guests on a first come basis who purchase tickets to The World Turned Upside Down: Music and Stories of the American Revolution.
